Now I have not any such object in view in rising to propose the health of our parting guest, but deem it right to state that, as a Commissioner of Customs, Mr. Lay has proved himself the best man of business we have ever had at this port. The position of Commissioner of Customs, especially in a small place, is a most difficult, as it is a most import. ant one; he has to have good commercial knowledge, must be a sort of equity lawyer to judge as to the proper time for enforcing fines and confiscations, and above all he must be a diplomat, for he has to please Dick, Tom, and Harry, as I may vulgarly denominate the foreign and native nationalities that he has to deal with. Mr. Lay has faltilled all these requisites very ably, and I may be allowed to add that a Commissioner who has d ne so has earned the gratitude of the community, and his departure will necessarily leave a want, which we trust, may be well filled."

In alluding to the farawall dinner given to Mr. Lay, I would like to say that we have for years been lubouring under great disadvantages in consequence of the continued changes that have taken place in the Castoms, in both indoor and outdoor departments not only have he heads of the lepartments; bash changed on the average of at least once a year, but the office seems to have become a regular school for the uninitiated members of the service, and every griffin that the Inspector-General has no immediate use for is drafte i off to this port. LOVE AFTER DEATH. If I should die before you, love, I pray you do not weep. Your wee beyond the first few tears The world will have you keep ; But say: "I make his heaven less By mouning thus in dreariness." And plant my violets, white and blue, Above my place of rest, .. And tend them with those dear, kind I ands I have so oft caresned; And say : "These flowers were his last will, And for his sake I watch them still." And when the spring that I so loved Shall finsh the land with life, I prny you sock my quiet grave, But not with tours, sweet wife; And if the flowers in bloom shall be, Say': "Lo I he sends his love to me."
